

Meet the Author! Live Webcast

Monday November 30, 2009 | 1:00 PM – 2:15 PM (EST)

PUBLIC HEALTH
Reports

Planning for a Pandemic – Can History Inform Action?

Speakers: Howard Markel, MD, PhD, Alexandra Stern, PhD, Marty Cetron, MD

Respondents: David Rosner, PhD (Implications for cities), Michael Meit, MA, MPH (Implications for rural areas)

The next Public Health Reports Meet the Author web cast series brings together public health historians and practitioners to connect the U.S. experience of the 1918 flu pandemic to the ongoing practice issues facing influenza preparedness planning. The program will address cutting-edge questions including:

- How did diverse communities and local leaders respond to the 1918 flu?
- How can these responses inform contemporary planning?
- How are these lessons being applied to inform the U.S. response to H1N1?
- What are the implications for planning at the local level, both in urban and rural America?

For more information: www.publichealthreports.org/interactive/webcast.cfm